1 Introduction

As a registered provider of Higher Education, Warrington & Vale Royal College is required to publish a Student Protection Plan. The plan sets out how the college will continue provision and maintain the quality of teaching and learning for students should a risk to continued studies crystallise.

The college has been delivering Higher Education programmes for many years and has significant experience in continuing and maintaining the quality of the study when programmes have ceased to run or a campus closed. The college does not currently offer programmes to international students.

This plan builds on this experience and its intention is to assure current and prospective students that there are appropriate measures and arrangements in place to respond to risks and enable continuation of study.

This document outlines the potential types of risk and explains how the college will minimise the impact to students if these risks should happen. It should be noted that the college will take into account your individual student need, characteristics and your circumstances in any action it takes to manage any event.

This plan forms an important part of the terms and conditions of your study with us. Please ensure that you have read and understood this document. Should you have any further questions or require clarification/s please speak to the college's Admissions Officer.

2 Commitments

The college makes commitments to current and prospective students. These commitments ensure that students are treated fairly and transparently, as supported by our planning process. The college has in place:

- A robust planning process for HE programmes to ensure that programmes are viable.
- A Teach Out commitment to ensure a phased approach to the closure of programmes
- A clear process for closing courses and advising applicants
- A process to manage changes to courses and the communication of these to applicants and students.

These are detailed below:

Business Planning

The college plans provision well in advance of delivery. This enables the college to approve, or otherwise, all provision that includes establishing the local demand, the resource requirements, module selections, staffing expertise and teaching plans for all programmes. Course planning will take account of this student protection plan. Courses must be approved before student recruitment can commence.

Teach Out

The college may wish to close and remove provision; this may be a programme or could refer to a department or a campus. Teach Out refers to the phased approach by which such closure will occur, allowing affected students to complete their studies before the closure occurs. The college's priority will be to ensure that as many of our students as possible complete their programme, regardless of the type of event with which the college may be faced. The college will utilise a range of methods to assist student in completing, agreed with the student, should the students not complete in the Teach Out timeframe.

The only exception to Teaching Out a programme would be where there were issues identified with the academic standards or the quality of the academic experience. In such circumstance, the college would protect the continuity of study by supporting students to complete or a mutually agreed plan, offering a transfer to a replacement or similar programme or give support to transfer to an alternative provider.

Course Closures

This plan will be included in the curriculum planning process, which takes place on an annual basis. The curriculum planning process establishes the viability of programmes, from which course closures and approvals are recommended. Course closures may also occur as a result of low applications, in which case the last date a course can be closed is 5 days after the A' Level results are published. Closures are communicated to applicants on this day. The college will guide and support applicants to alternative programmes or another suitable provider.

Changes to programmes

Material changes to the programme, such as structure and modules, cannot be made without approval of the Director of HE. Approved changes will be communicated to applicants by the Admissions Officer as soon as possible. Applicants will be advised of their right to seek entry to another provider and to withdraw their current application.

Where an applicant has accepted an offer, they will be given the information and guidance to help them make an informed decision about their future course of action.

In normal circumstances, material changes should not be made to programmes after registration. Where this is unavoidable, students shall be consulted at the earliest opportunity on the changes and, where practicable, their views taken into account.

3 Refund and Compensation Policy

The college has a HE Fees and Refunds policy, available on our website. It outlines the circumstances in which we will refund tuition fees and other relevant costs where we are no longer able to provide continuation of study. Refunds are a last resort after the college has exhausted all other avenues and so are committed to doing all that we can to ensure that refunds and compensation are not necessary. The college will have sufficient finance in place to refund/compensate students where appropriate.

4. Advice, support and communication

Should any of the risks identified in this plan occur and the resulting impact on the students is more than insignificant, the college will act swiftly and offer those students affected guidance and support. The nature of this will vary from student to student and is dependent on circumstances.

The college will take reasonable steps to avoid implementing changes during an academic year. Students will be consulted and engaged in discussion about course, campus or college closure within 14 days. In the case of closures, students will receive an individual letter or email and will be invited to discuss the implementation by a college manager. Updates will be provided dependant on the nature of the event.

For current and prospective students, this plan is available on our website and will be supplied to applicants when their study offer is made. The plan will also be referred to in student handbooks for ongoing reference. College staff will have access to the student protection plan on the college's intranet site Info Point and the plan will be disseminated as part of the college's HE CPD programme.

Students can seek independent advice about any aspect of this plan and can also seek clarification and guidance from the college Admission's Officer. Students are able to complain about the implementation of this plan using the college's complaints policy.

5 Review

This plan will be reviewed annually to ensure it continues to be relevant and practical. The review will be carried out by the Director or HE and presented to the Curriculum and Standards Committee, which the HE Student Governor will attend, for final approval by the governing body.

6 Risks

Risk	Likelihood	Impact	Mitigation
The approval of HNC/HND provision is revoked by the awarding organisation/partner university	Very unlikely	Extreme	The way in which the college quality assures programmes are fully embedded and monitored by the governing body. In the very unlikely event that approval is withdrawn, the college will work closely with the awarding organisation, other providers and the students to agree a plan of action to enable each student to complete.
The college is no longer able to deliver HE programmes	Unlikely	Extreme	The college would cease recruitment for HE programmes in advance. Students currently on programme would be guided to complete their studies in the given timescale. All students are enrolled on HNC or HND routes, which in the main are 1 year FT programmes. On completion of the HNC students would be guided to alternative provision to complete their HND or transfer to a University to commence their degree level studies.
The college is no longer able to operate as it intends or closes due to financial challenges	Unlikely	Extreme	The risk of being unable to operate is low because of the way in which managers monitor financial performance and report to the governing body through the Finance and Resources Committee. Should the college close, the closure would be managed over a timescale, which enables students to complete or be transferred to an alternative suitable provider depending on individual needs. The college has a positive cash balance and credit agreements in place with the bank, which would be sufficient to provide refunds and compensation for those students that have been identified as at an increased risk of non-continuation of study.
The risk that the college cannot operate as it intends due to a critical incident	Unlikely	Moderate	The college has a Business Continuity Plan to deal with incidents such as fire, flood, storms, terrorist or cyber-attack. As a multi-site college we are able to transfer provision to an alternative site in the short-term. If we are unable to deliver courses at one of our campuses, timetables would be revised to permit teaching to transfer to an alternate campus, which may include some aspects of blended learning to further meet students needs.
The college closes provision or a campus	Likely	Moderate	The college reviews utilisation at all campuses and where necessary will take steps to relocate provision to alternative sites to improve viability. Decisions to relocate provision are taken by the governing body as part of the estates strategy. As a multi-site college, we are able to transfer provision to alternate campuses to enable continuity of study.

Issues with partner organisations.	Likely	Moderate	The college has a partnership with Longridge Training Centre to deliver engineering HE programmes in the North West mainly for large employers such as BAe systems. The partnerships is refreshed on an annual basis and is subject to quality assurance checks to ensure provision meets academic standards. The college is also reliant on the continued support of BAe Systems in sending their employees to this site. Should this no longer be the case, and demand from other employers diminishes, the college will work with Longridge to Teach Out programmes to maximise the completion of students. In the case that the partnership ceases completely, the college is responsible for its students and will work with employers to source alternative facilities and a delivery partner. Students will be informed of their options to complete their studies or transfer to an alternative suitable provider.
Non-completion of the delivery in a subject area, course or material component of a programme.	Unlikely	Moderate	This is deemed unlikely due to the college's "Teach Out" commitment. From a staff expertise perspective, the college employs teams of academic staff who have responsibility across a range of course modules.
Cease delivery on one or more courses to students.	Unlikely	Moderate	Should delivery cease, the college's Teach Out commitment would apply in this case. The college would cease recruitment for HE programmes in advance. The college considers programme viability and sustainability well in advance of the commencement of programmes, to enable applicants on unviable programmes to receive timely guidance and support to source alternative provision.
No longer able to deliver one or more modes of study to our students, particularly if withdrawing a mode of study	Very unlikely	Low	The college does not withdraw modes of study. Part-time students infill into full-time classes over a two-year time frame. The Teach Out commitment would apply if the course was withdrawn, which may include a blended learning approach depending on the needs of the student.
